Signs of

the Times

An individual exposed to past and present ideas developing
new ideas for the future
involved
within the realm
of a strange place
that is unique unto itself growing to meet the demands of a changing world.
These are the signs
of the times.

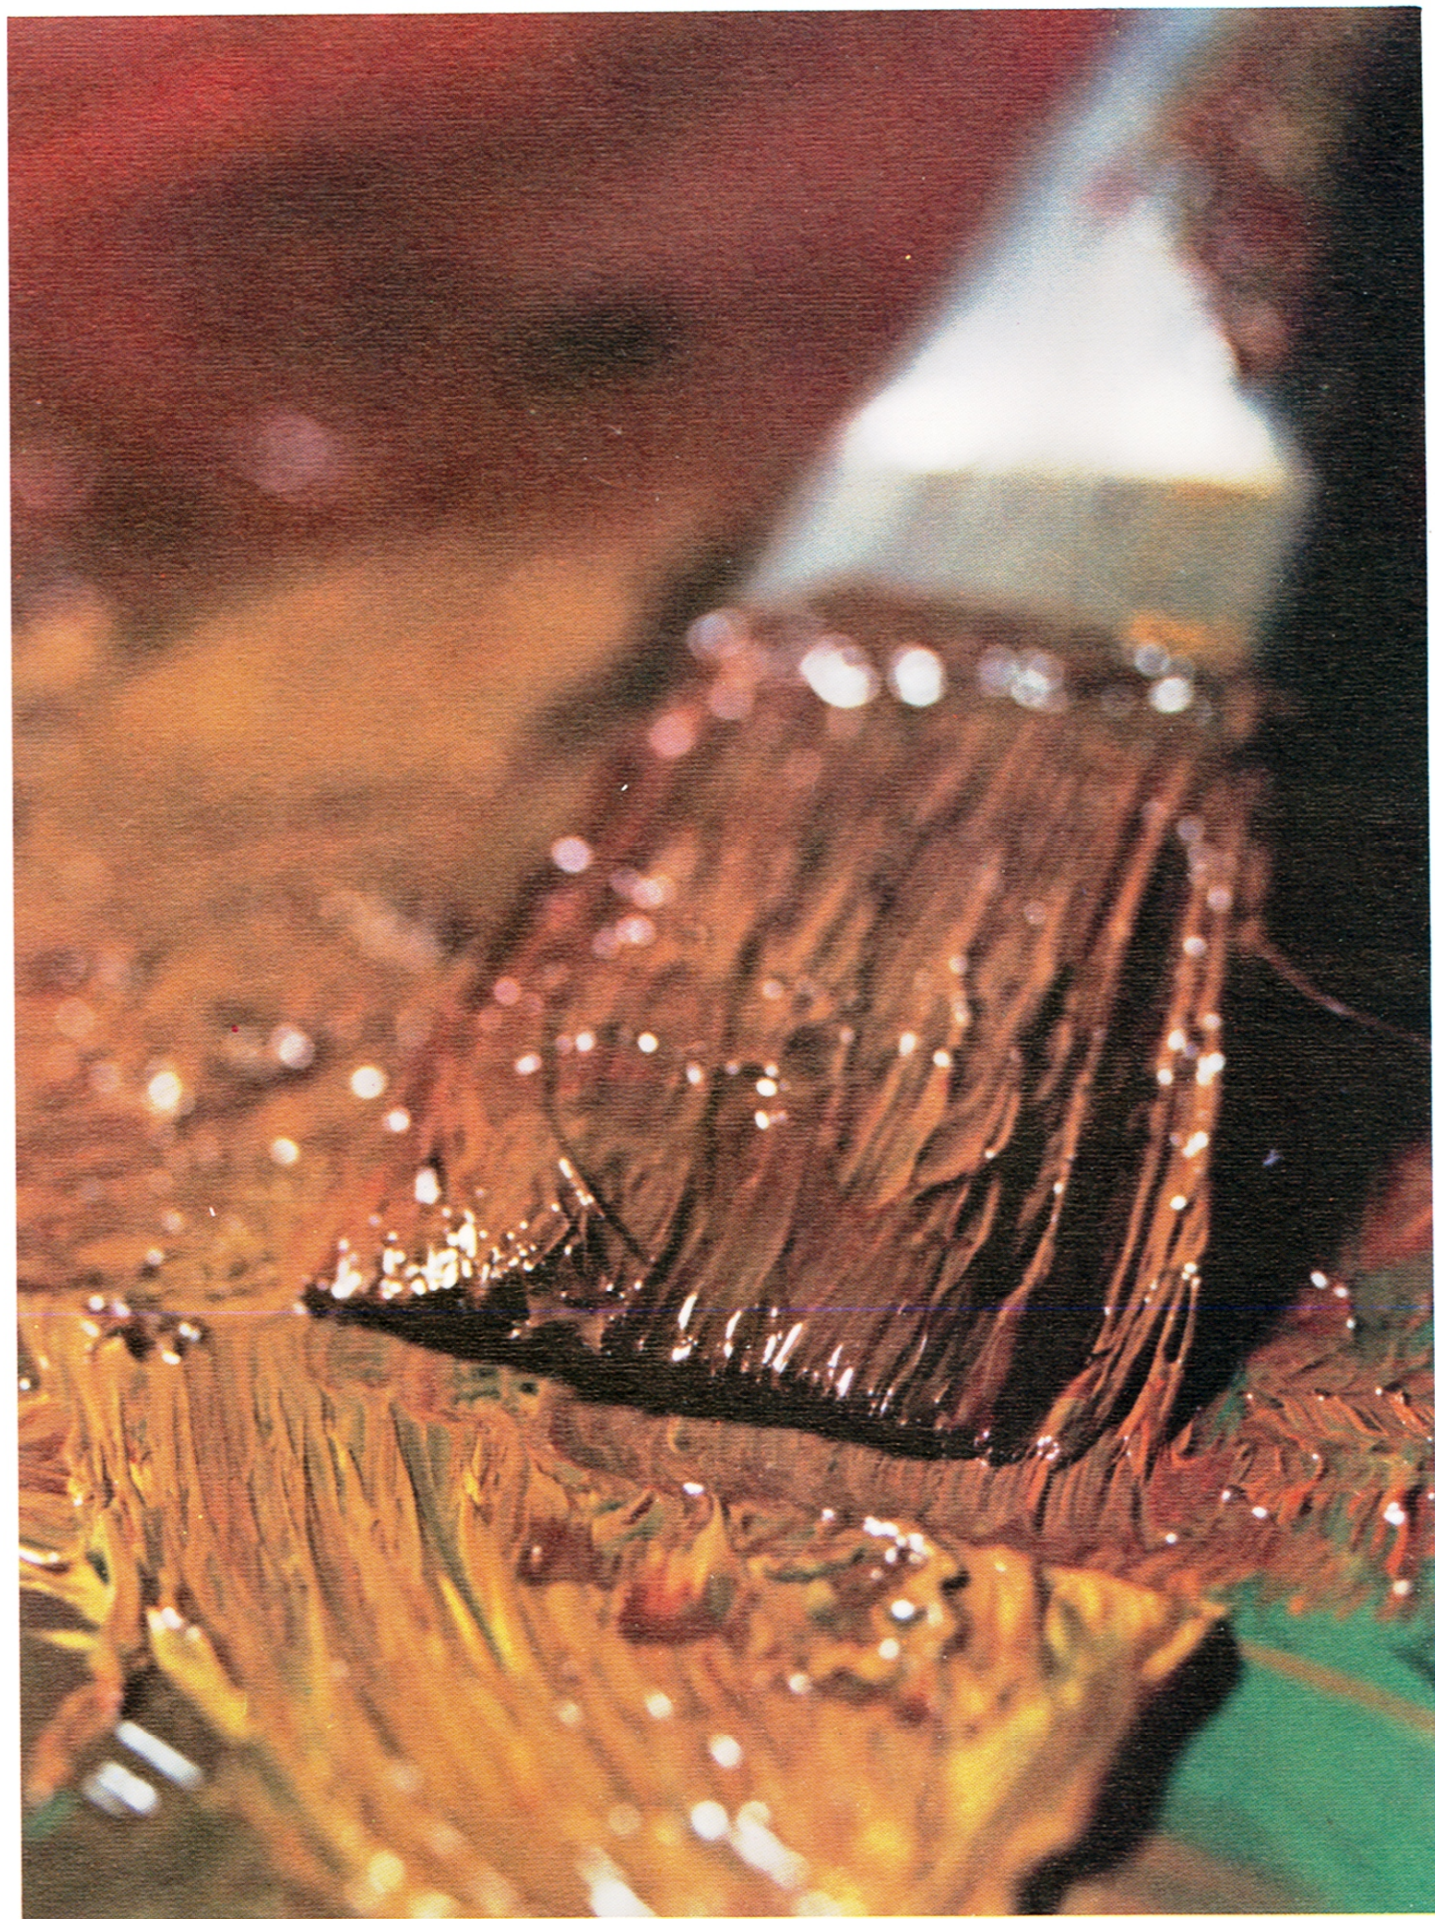

To many of us
this is a different place.
We are exposed
to a new physical atmosphere.
To others
the signs are more familiar,
yet we too are aware of a constant change.

Here there are signs
of development in learning
of what is happening here
and in the rest of the world and why.

We familiarize signs
of involvement
with media
with a process
with others.

We notice signs
of enthusiasm
when we are inspired,
of frustration
when we cannot understand,
of apathy
when we do not care.

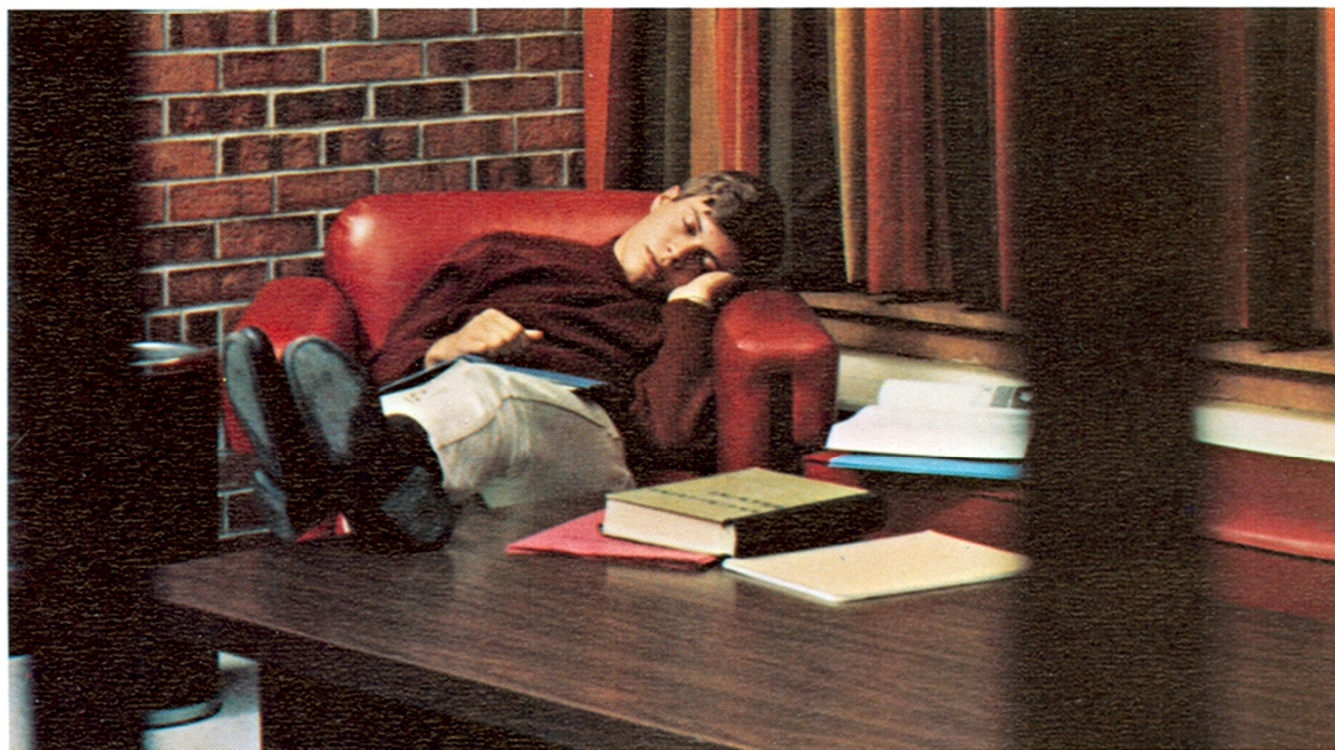

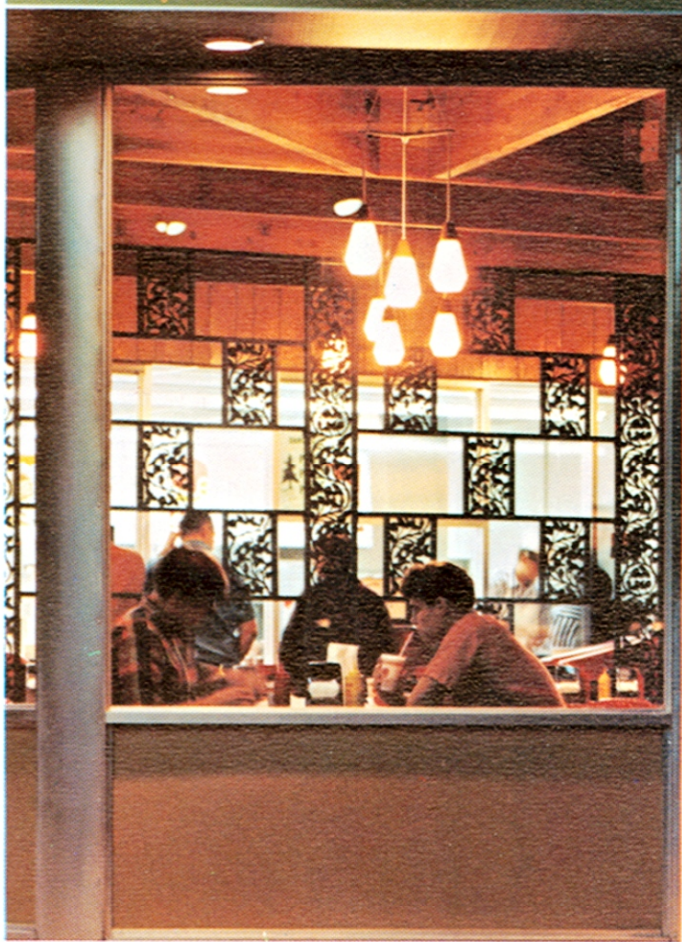

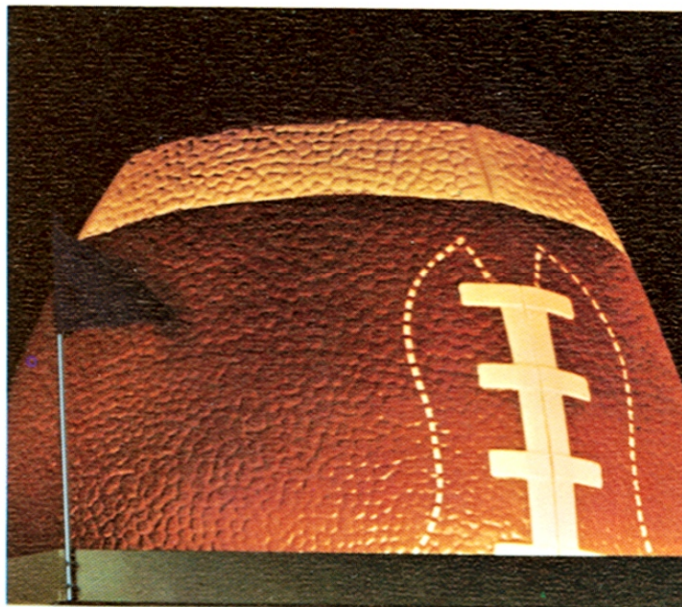

There are signs
of growth
when we are inspired,
when we exchange ideas . . .

. . . or

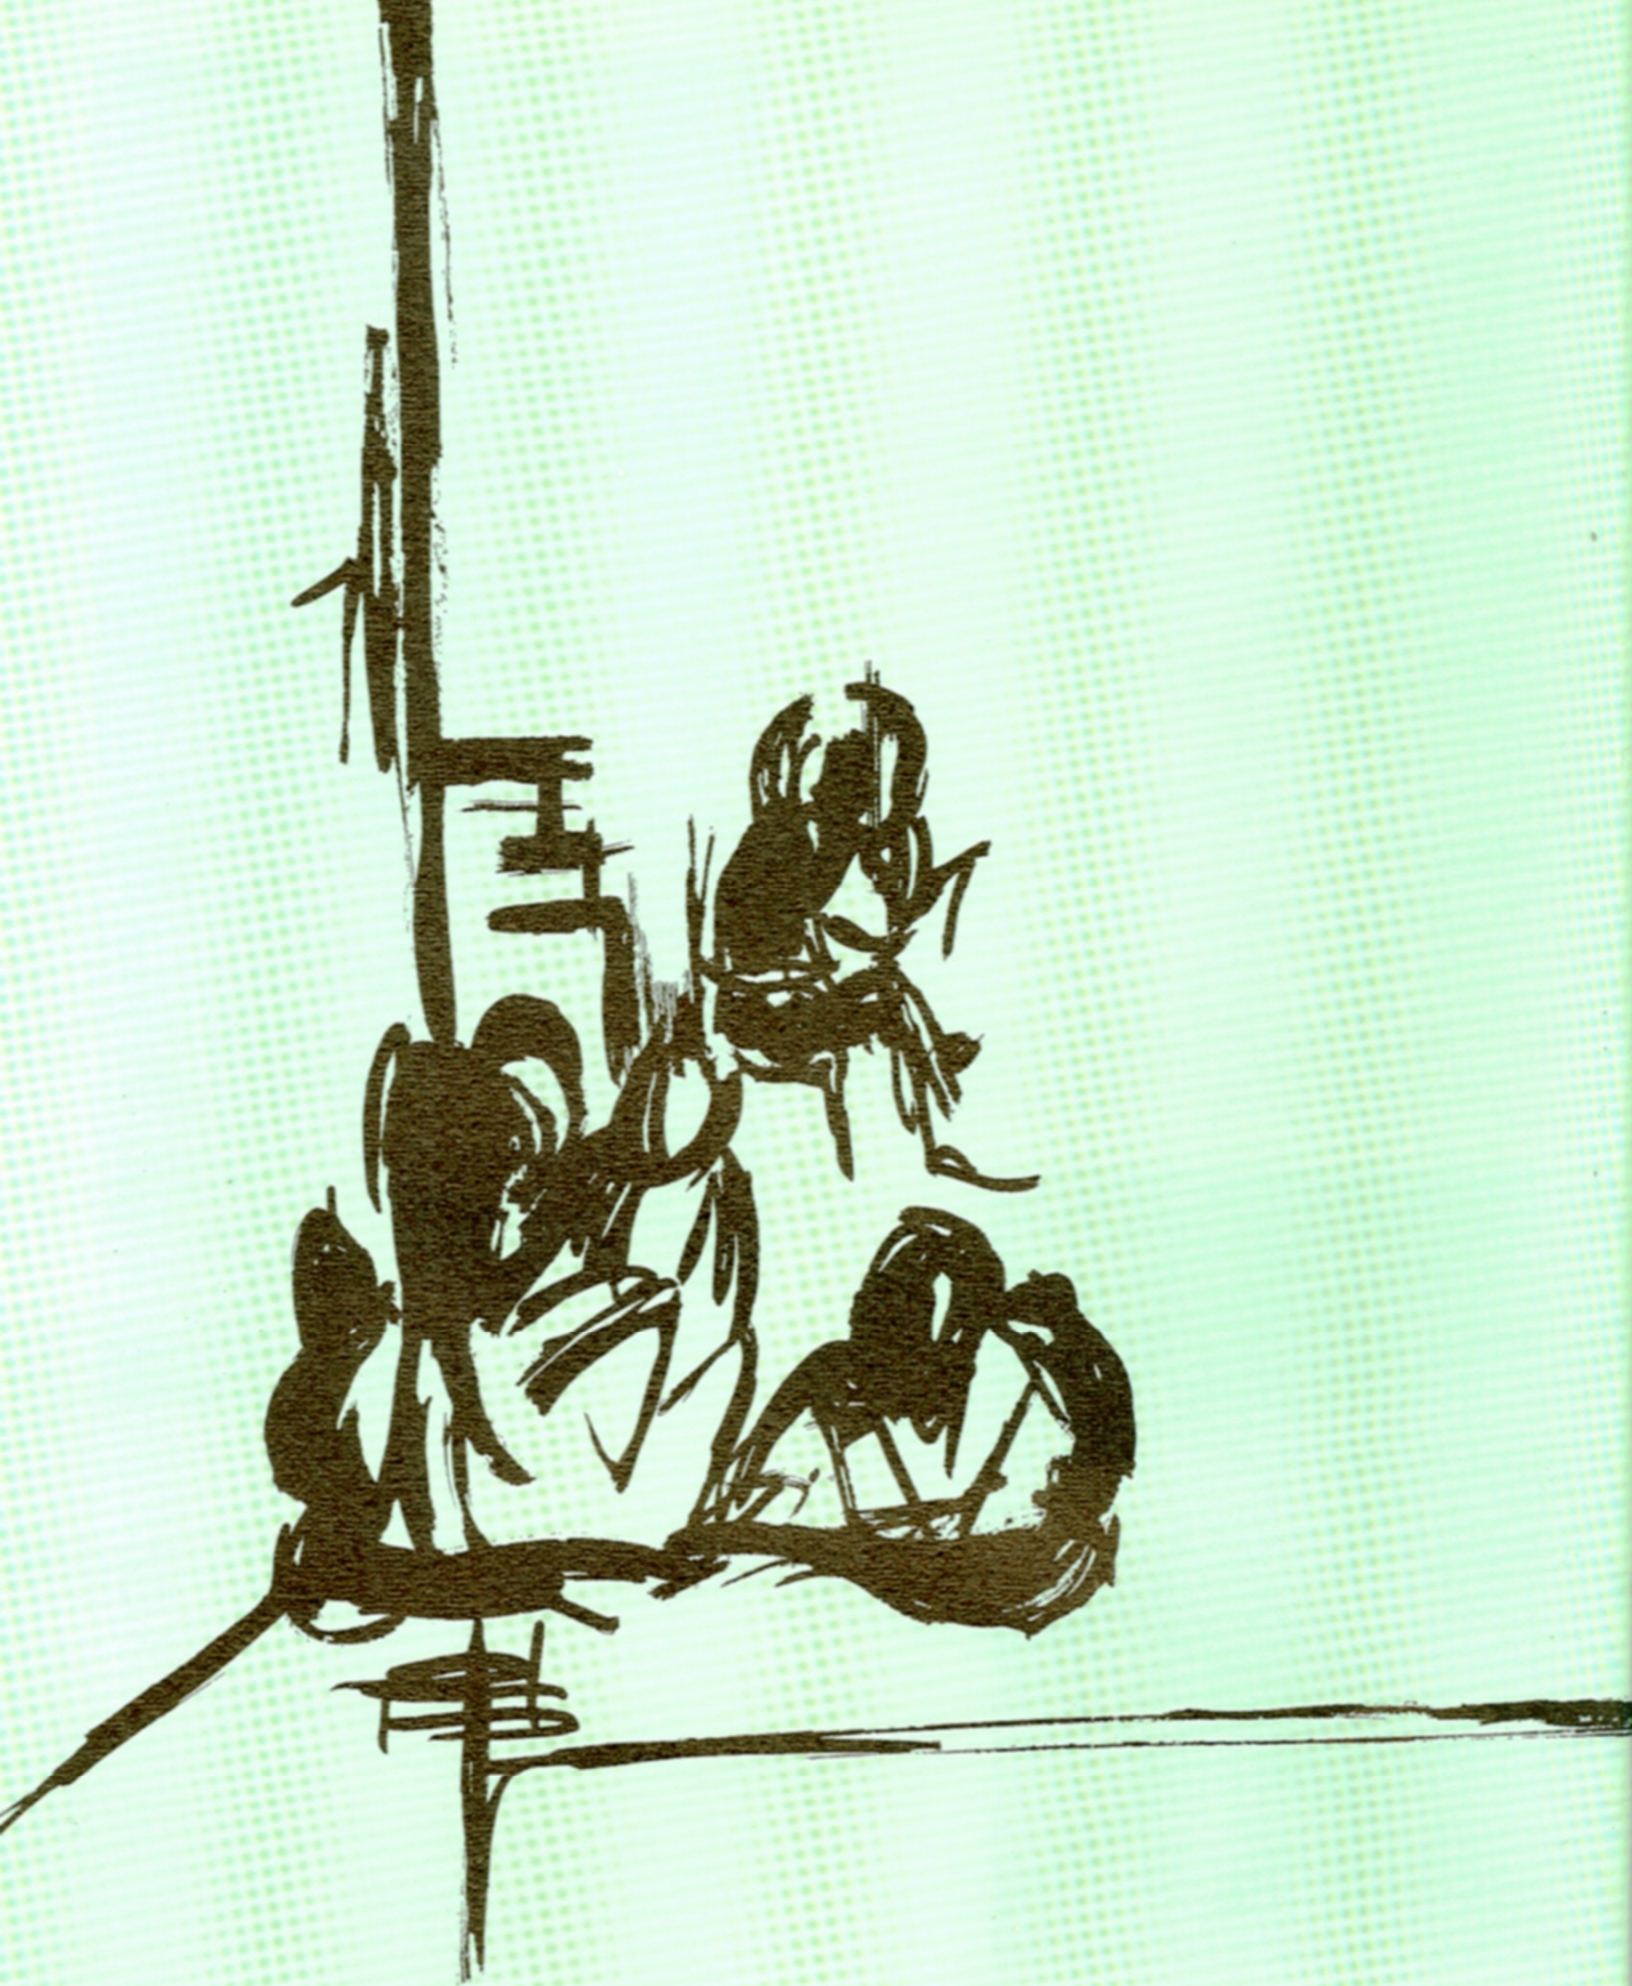

when we appreciate the common.

We become aware of a change within ourselves
when we have attained a goal
or
when we begin to comprehend
the signs of the times.

Building of character
through activities
Learning to adjust
and organize
in the time we use for ourselves and others.

Student Life

Each year the same activities

take place.
We wonder why
this repetition
does not become monotonous.
The answer is very simple—
the people themselves are different.
Those of us who were involved
aware concerned
made this year what it was.

Oblivion has long settled
obscurely on the materialistic inherent to many accepted by greater numbers
yet challenged more strongly by a few who dare to question themselves.

Registration often brings contemplation as what to do with a "tight" schedule when one or two classes have closed out.

Formality is a beginning, lending to the more obscure obstacles which follow.

Mark Olson and Steve Pate pick up class cards needed from one department at the registration center in the ballroom.

The year began with usual frustrations and confusions.

Registration was basically the same.

The university had grown—

we now numbered about 4300.

In some areas

this meant a shortage of instructors

or encountering the problem of classes

"closing out" early.

The freshman orientation program revised

"Grappling with Ideas"

operates on a year round basis.

Students and faculty

held discussions with freshmen on academic freedom

social life on campus

adjustment in general.

The system—it's controlled by IBM machines and cards and probably most important—numbers.

We question individual identity in mass lectures, but isn't it more important in terms of what we do beyond the classroom experience, how we relate what we have learned to ourselves and through communication with others?

We pushed through crowded halls and into classrooms.

Some of us were enrolled in large classes in Harvey Hall auditorium in room 411 for chemistry lectures.

The library was crowded—if we were fortunate we found a place to study in the stacks.

Some managed amid the noise and confusion in the student union.

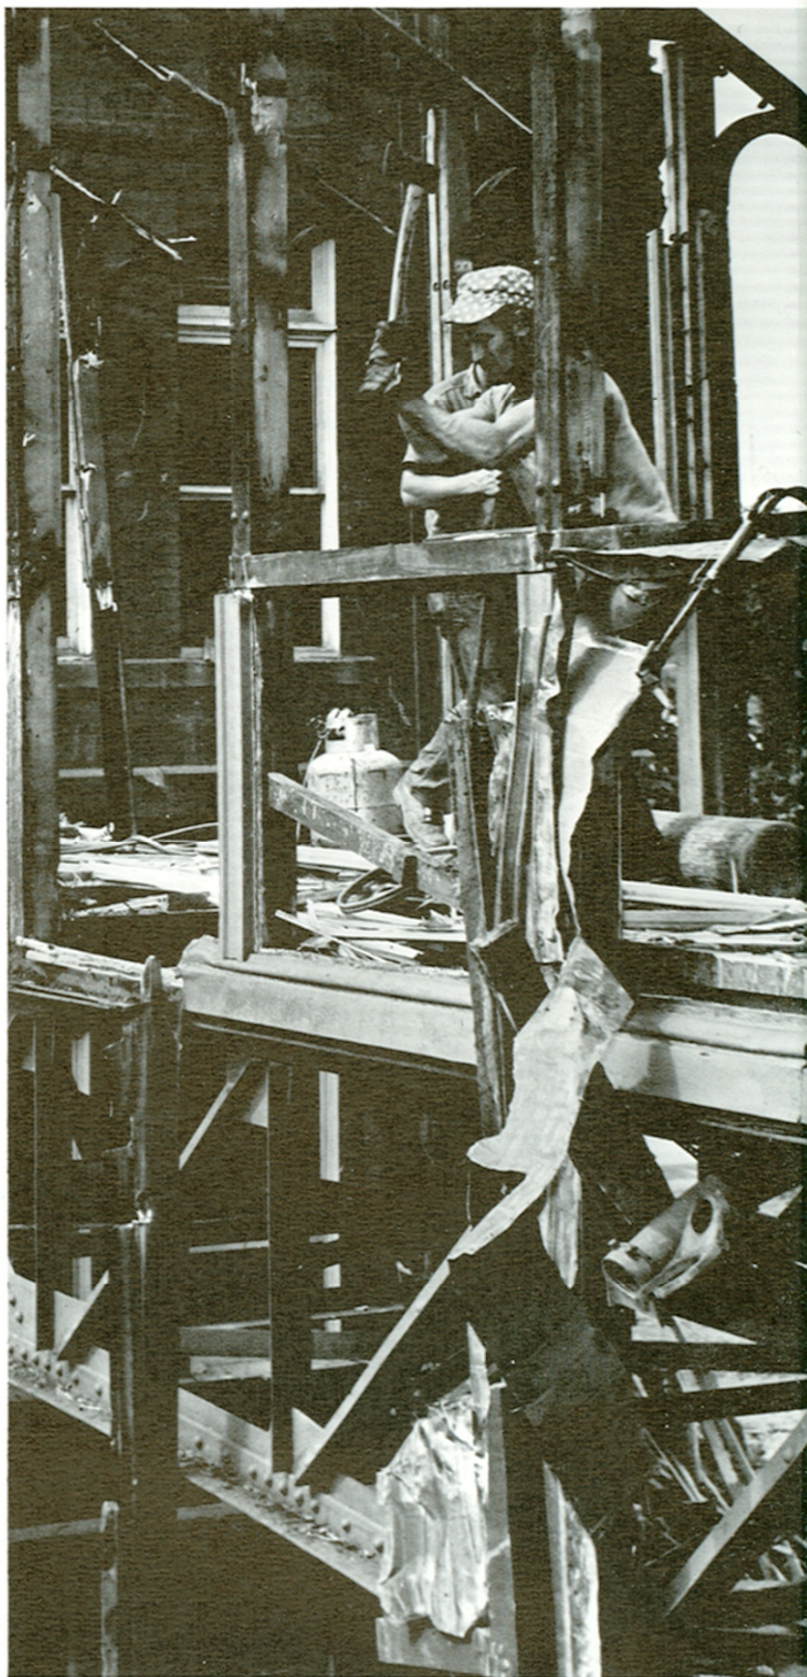

Along with books and regular supplies the campus book store carries a variety of paraphernalia.

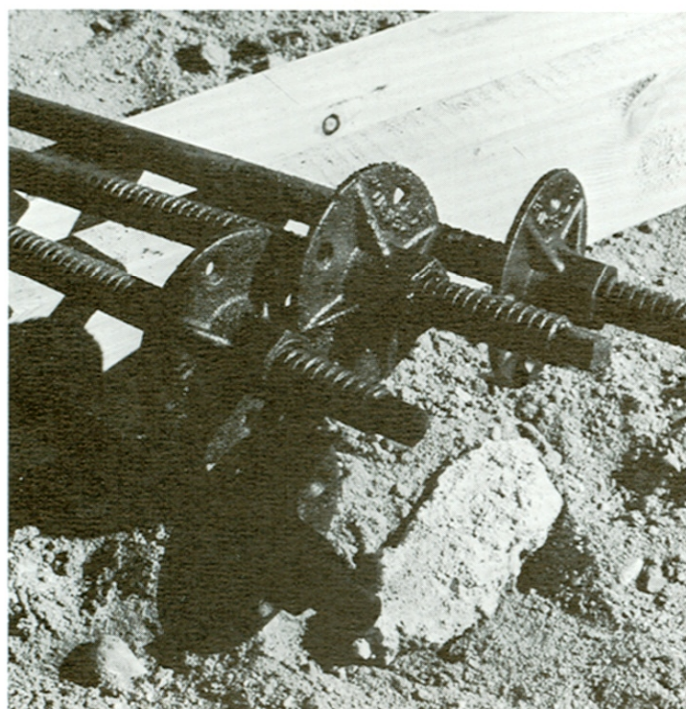

Many times the easiest place to study amid this year's noise and confusion in the library was in the stacks.

The campus was under constant construction

Facilities had to be expanded—
the library
the new science building
the administration building.

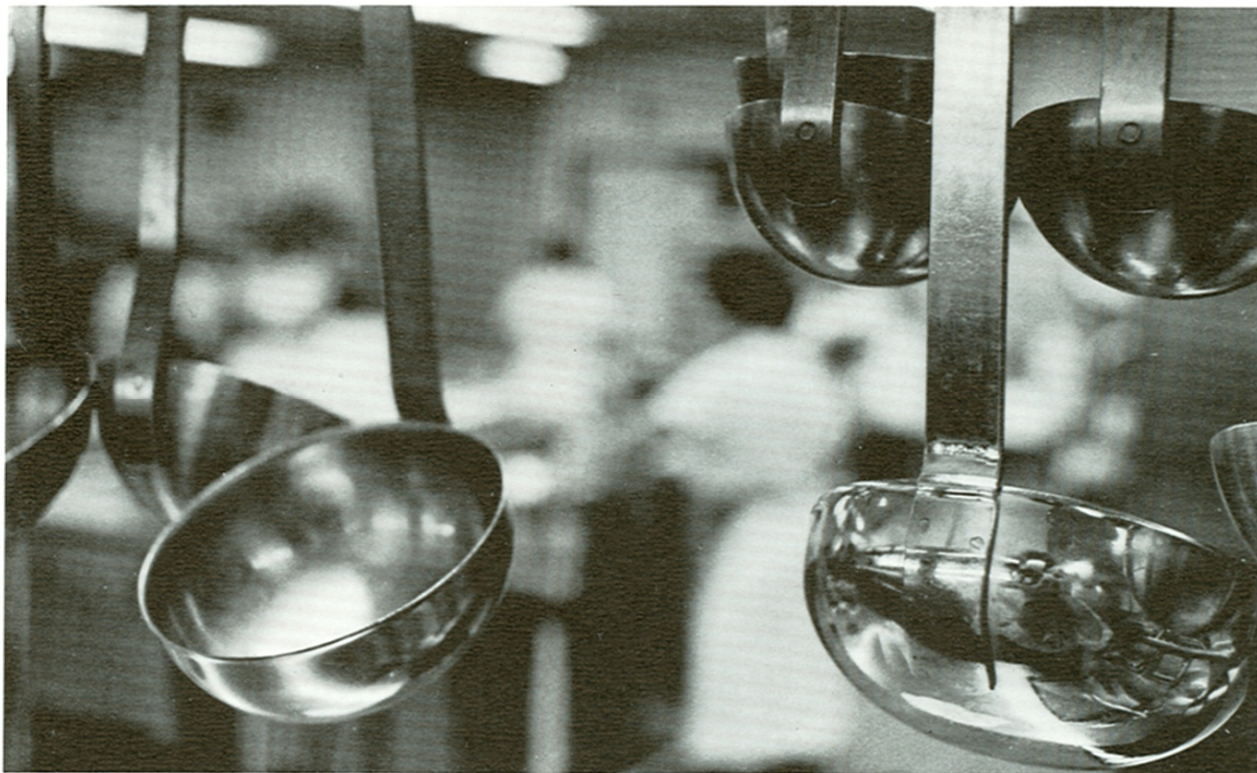

Workmen destroy the skeleton of the old high school to make way for the new administration building.

Expansion achieves completion through basic building elements—lumber, reinforcement rods, gravel, and cement.

The most complex structures are comprised of single units.

A color scheme of shiny steel on white, a maze of ladles and pots, ovens and refrigerators, uniforms and aprons—all fit into that puzzle of a world known as that ever popular Commons kitchen.

Discussion is the first step to instituting change. It means searching for necessary improvements for the members of the Inter-Residence Hall Council.

We met with our friends in The Commons—studying, discussing, listening. It was a place to "unwind."

Most of us lived in dormitories

At the beginning of the year
there was a shortage of rooms.
IRHC had grown in power sponsoring

bus trips to the cities
floor parties
and taking an active role in student government.

The sunken lounge in the Commons became the "in place" to be.

Here we listen to records
talk study.

Dormitory rooms are the scene for a variety of interesting activities; some are termed as "bull sessions."

Cooking presents a problem for men students unless they "appear" to know the process as Greg Czapkowski.

Off-campus life involves a variety of household activities. Gail Martinson, like many apartment dwellers, frequents the laundromat early on a Saturday morning.

Those of us who live off campus

are concerned
with transportation
with the parking situation
with preparing meals.

Those who live in apartments
are generally more satisfied often commenting on the "freedom" allotted.

An added responsibility of apartment living is planning and preparing for meals. Sharon Perry and Mary White shop for food at a nearby grocery store.

Borgie's potpourri is a common interest stop for afternoon inspection shoppers like Francis Sager.

During the day we spent time

in between classes
in the student union.
It was the place
to collect latest campus news.
We study
and discuss.
There was talk about the Mission Statement—
some of us attended
president's convocations.
Our interests vary—
this was inherent in how our time was used.

The elevator in Harvey Hall was the scene of students pushing in and out to get to classes.

We move within the physical complex of the university system.

The chemistry lecture room on fourth floor Harvey is part of the life of most SSU sophomores.

The student union was a place to study, visit the coffee house, or attend a mixer.

The nights reflect the thoughts and ideals of students, whether spent with a beer, a group of friends or midnight oil.

In the evenings we studied

Many of us had classes to attend.
Many times we crammed for exams.

There was a variety of activities

movies

sports

meetings

"downtown."

Dean Wright started a free university

which began with evening discussions

on racial problems and communications.

Some of our most vital learning experiences were when we were involved in open discussions.

We were learning to communicate.

Learning to see and hear is as important as participation.

Recreation was a matter of choice

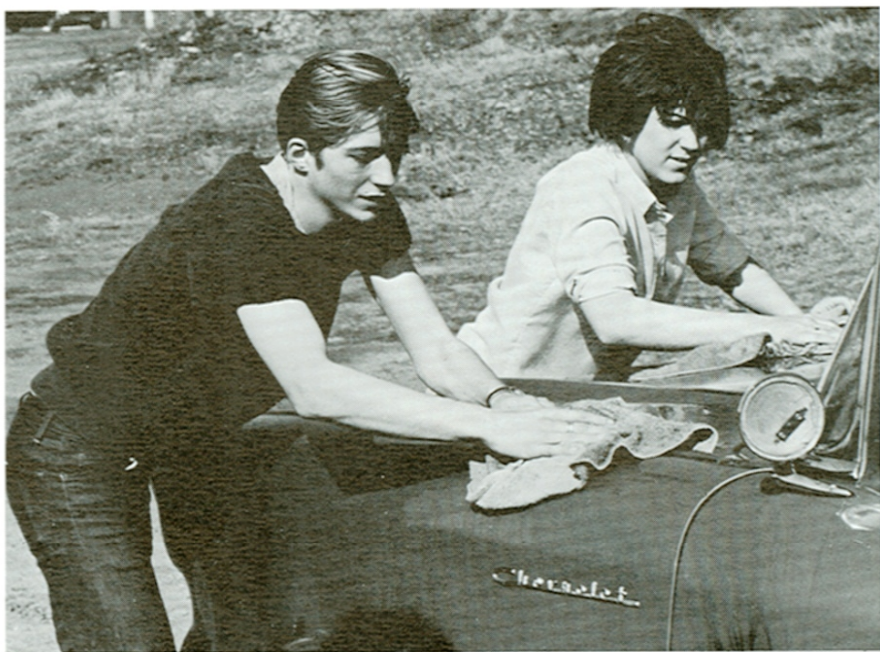

Organizations sponsored mixers
throughout the year.

There were

intramural sports
skating and hockey
lyceum programs
the coffee house.

We define recreation according to our needs and ideas.

It is an integral part of living, a format of human relations.

On Saturday afternoons the area in between dormitories was the scene of spontaneous football games.

Hockey was initiated in the sports program this year.

The Pawn opened in the fall

sponsoring folk entertainment

Shipley and Brewer

The Golliards

The Folk Song Army.

A Wednesday evening radio program

Unabridged

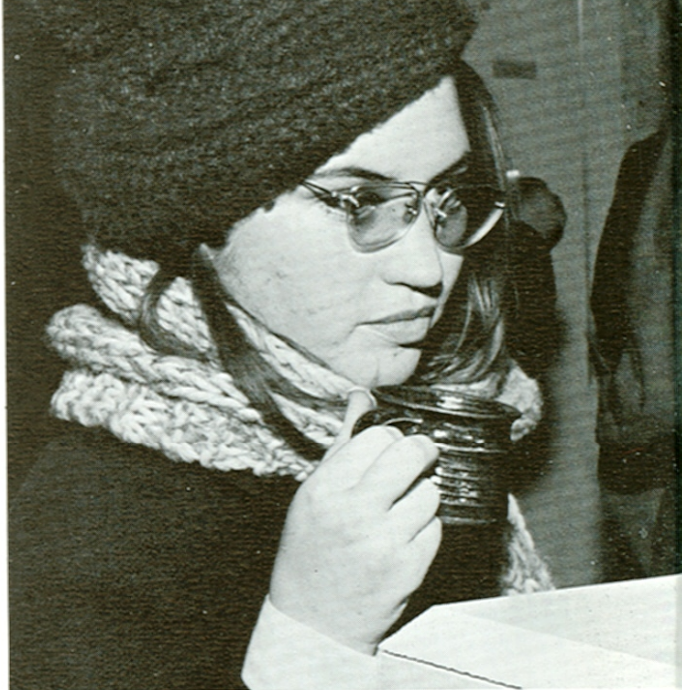

was sponsored by the student government

as an attempt to strengthen university-community relations.

Student art openings

were held every two weeks in the Commons.

Bill Schultz was coordinator for SSA's "Unabridged."

When we "see" or understand in terms of an idea expressed it takes on the character of individual development.

The Pawn became a "new" place with a "different" sort of atmosphere.

This year's Homecoming was our 75th Anniversary

It was centered around a theme:
Yesterday's Heritage, Tomorrow's Future.

Some of us planned for months to achieve a well-organized week of various activities

contests, raffles, pep rallies
a semi-formal dance with three bands
a parade
the selection of a queen.

Queen candidates Betty Mahr and Judy Duitman exchange casual conversation with Dean Iverson at the Queen's Tea.

Searching for a message in, of all things, blueberry pie is a major task for Maya Hahn in the pie-eating contest.

The Kids Next Door entertained students and faculty at a lyceum program during the first part of the week.

"Going Out of Our Heads," sung by Judy Gunderson, was part of the program sponsored by the Delta Zetas for their queen candidate, Colleen Balko.

The Kids Next Door entertained.
 Dr. Huston Smith spoke on "gaps in understanding in a technological society."
 Group participation made it what it was Homecoming 1968.

Dr. Wigen, former Professor and Dean of Graduate Studies at Stout, sings the Alma-Mater at the anniversary banquet.

Contortions in compressed areas are not unusual sights during evenings of float construction before the Homecoming parade.

Jo Sinkular, sponsored by Alpha Phi sorority, was crowned 1968 Homecoming queen at the coronation on Friday.

With a final standing of 20-14, the Stout Bluedevil rally fell short during our Homecoming game with Stevens Point.

Presentation — Campus Queens '68

selected for beauty and talent personality
or involvement in campus activities.

Chosen by students and faculty to reign over Stout's week-long campus festivals were Jo Sinkular, Homecoming Queen, and Karen McChesney, Winter Carnival Queen.

Participation and personality won crowns for Sharie Meyers, S-Club Sports Queen, and Lona Holsen, Miss Freshman.

Fraternity men named their favorite beauties, Jean Gunsolley, Sigma Tau Gamma Calendar Queen; Ceil Hemmerich, National Phi Sigma Epsilon Sweetheart; and Esther Fong, Tau Kappa Epsilon Sweetheart.

This year's theme was Winter Chateau

The week's activities included
ice races
contests in the student union
"Chateau a la Nieve."

Fred Smoot entertained.

Organizations competed for trophies
with ice carvings.

The Chi Lambdas received
the Grand Champion award
for their Walt Disney scene.

Enjoying the evening's festivities at "Chateau a la Nieve" are Bill Minter and Marge Winiarski.

Fred Smoot, the mechanic on "The Wackiest Ship in the Army," entertains the students at the Lyceum program. Fred, being a doubly funny comedian, keeps the students roaring with laughter.

Dave Kalan is ready for the gun to go off and start the race.

To many beer drinking is entertaining, but to those who are in the couples beer drinking contest, as Sue Fields and Bill Green, it is challenging.

Organizations competed for trophies
with ice carvings.

At the close of the week,

Karen McChesney
was crowned 1969 Winter Carnival
Queen.

Judie Lahti
was Princess.

Jan Pecha
received the talent award
for the Monday evening convocation.

Tension mounts during the queen's coronation as pretty Karen McChesney, sponsored by the men of North Hall, is crowned Winter Carnival Queen by last year's queen, Leslie Pillar.

One of the highlights of Thursday afternoon's festivities, the toilet race brings a round of laughter. Slowly making their way across the hockey rink to the finish line are Loren Bretl and Norbert Buehmann.

Beaming with joy, our Winter Carnival Princess Judie Lahti, sponsored by the women of AFM, chats with John Blanchard, her escort.

The girls tug of war seems to prove exasperating to the girls from the Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority who are pulling their way to a victory.

Talent Night

ingenuity and creativity

through individuals and groups
is sponsored by Phi Sigma Epsilon.
James Roche

of the Folk Song Army received first place trophy.
Proceeds are contributed towards a scholarship fund.

Jim Jarchow flounces her blonde curls and flutters her lashes to charm her date, Ken Klima, in a between-the-acts skit.

Jim Roche with guitar captures not only first prize, but also the enthusiasm of the audience with his sing-along.

Phi Omega Beta presents Stunt Nite

donating proceeds to the Tom Hake fund.
Chi Lambda fraternity
took first place

in the most humorous category
followed by Delta Zeta and Sigma Pi.
The Alpha Phi's received first award
in the most beautiful division.

Judy Duitman moderates the Alpha Omicron Pi skit entitled "A Tired American Speaks Out" as other members of the cast portray police brutality during student protests.

The Sigma Pi Powerful Prancing Powderpuffs from Poland do their thing in full regalia.

The lyceum committee sponsors convocations

for major university functions.
The "Kids Next Door"
were invited for Homecoming Week.
Fred Smoot entertained
during Winter Carnival.
Other listings included
the Tamburitzens
Martin Berkofsky
Frank Mankowitz.

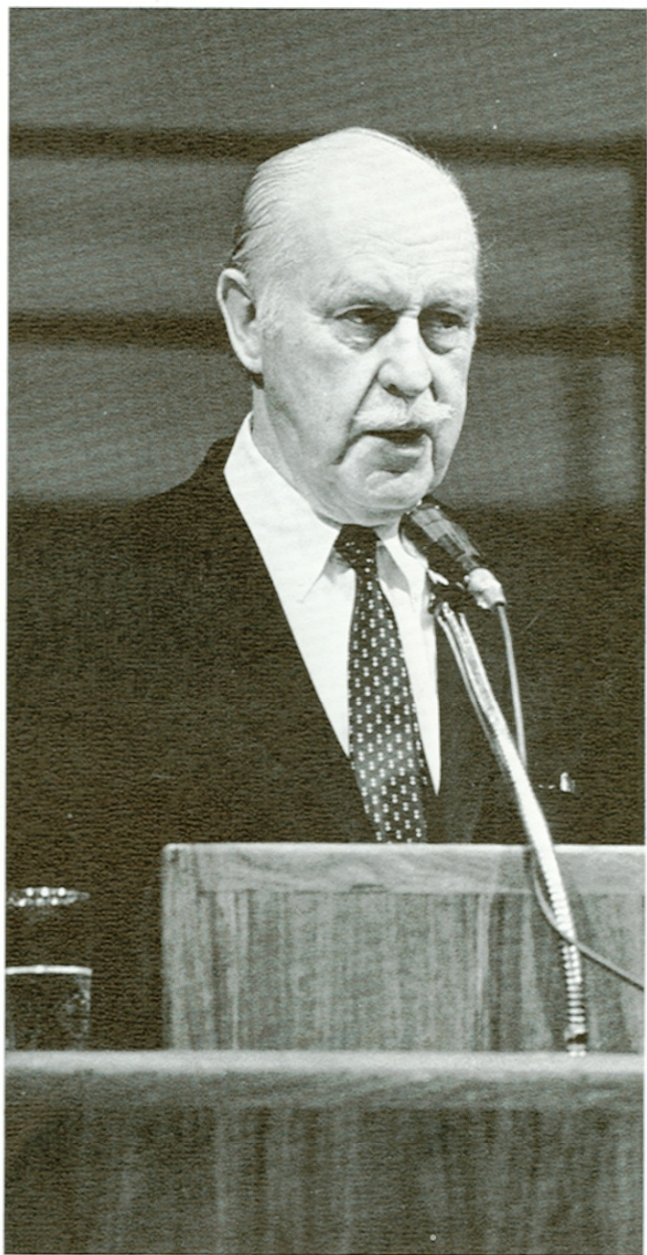

Martin Berkofsky, a New York pianist, appears in concert to begin the New Year in musical style.

The Tamburitzens of Duquesne University perform a pageant of song and dance ranging from Slavic folk music to American and barbershop quartet numbers.

The Kaleidoscope Players entertained Stout students and faculty with their dramatic rendition of the "Spoon River Anthology."

Drew Pearson candidly discusses the politics and policies of the newly inaugurated Nixon administration with an interested student audience.

University theatre presents major productions.

The fall play
"The Crucible"
was directed by Keith Jones.
"Reluctant Debutante"
was presented during the winter quarter.
The program is supplemented by student-directed short plays in the Quarter Square Theatre.

Carl Riemer, stage manager, and John Ringlespaugh assist with lighting and other back stage preparations for University Theatre productions.

The tension mounts as Abigail, Judy Hackel, goes into a frenzied chant during a grueling court scene in this year's stirring fall play, the "Crucible."

Gossiping busily, Betty Chesney makes evening plans for her daughter, Judy Hackel, in the uproariously funny winter play, the "Reluctant Debutante."

Last minute tensions and final touch-ups are all a part of the scene in the tiny, backstage, make-up room.

Graduation — we retrospect

on what we have learned through four, maybe five years.
We apprehend.
We question
more than erudite learning.
Educated men? Scholars?
The "token" is ours—
what remains is the trial.

Mike McHugh awaits a last minute check for perfection just before the graduation ceremony.

Graduation—a sometimes welcome relief from too often weighing responsibilities.

Pride during graduation comes in many forms.

Graduation is often considered an accomplishment of purpose; maybe we should think in terms of questioning ourselves or at least be aware of it.

The football team began with two wins

Winona and Superior.
After defeats from Whitewater and Oshkosh,
Coach Sparger stressed changes
in the defensive secondary.
Holmes performed well in blocking and running.

Rocky Maxson excelled in passing.
The Bluedevils lost their Homecoming
to Stevens Point
due to three offside penalties
in the first quarter.
The team
mainly freshmen and sophomores
ended a frustrating season with a final 2-6-1 record.

Coach Sparger discusses with Rocky Maxson strategy to be used for the next offensive drive in the game.

Sophomore fullback Duane Stevens charges into the teeth of the powerful Oshkosh unit.

In an air of concentration and anxiety, the bench string anticipates the next defensive move in the Whitewater game.

Flashy junior guard Greg Ebsen outstretches a Titan defender for two of his twelve game points during the 77-58 Devil's sweeping victory.

Bluedevils finished the season with a 14-2 conference log one half game ahead of Stevens Point.

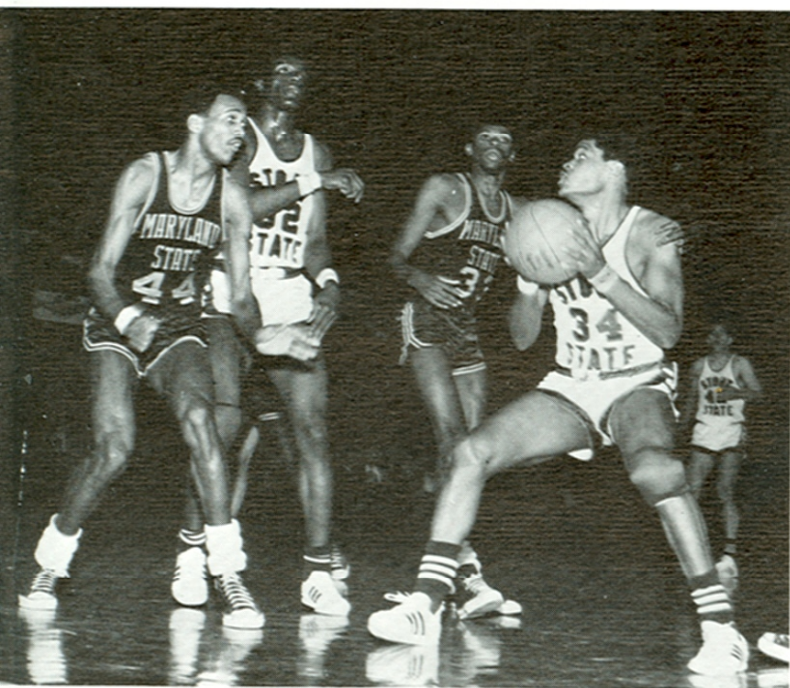

Coleman, Heideman and Glover were named to the WSU All-Conference team for 1968-69.

An anxious La Crosse defender fouls sophomore Cal Glover while Mel Coleman watches for a rebound. La Crosse fell to an overpowering attack as the Bluedevils downed the Indians 96-60.

Greg Ebsen succeeds in a fast break following Mel Coleman who screens the La Crosse defense.

Cal Glover pauses to check the risk of shooting.

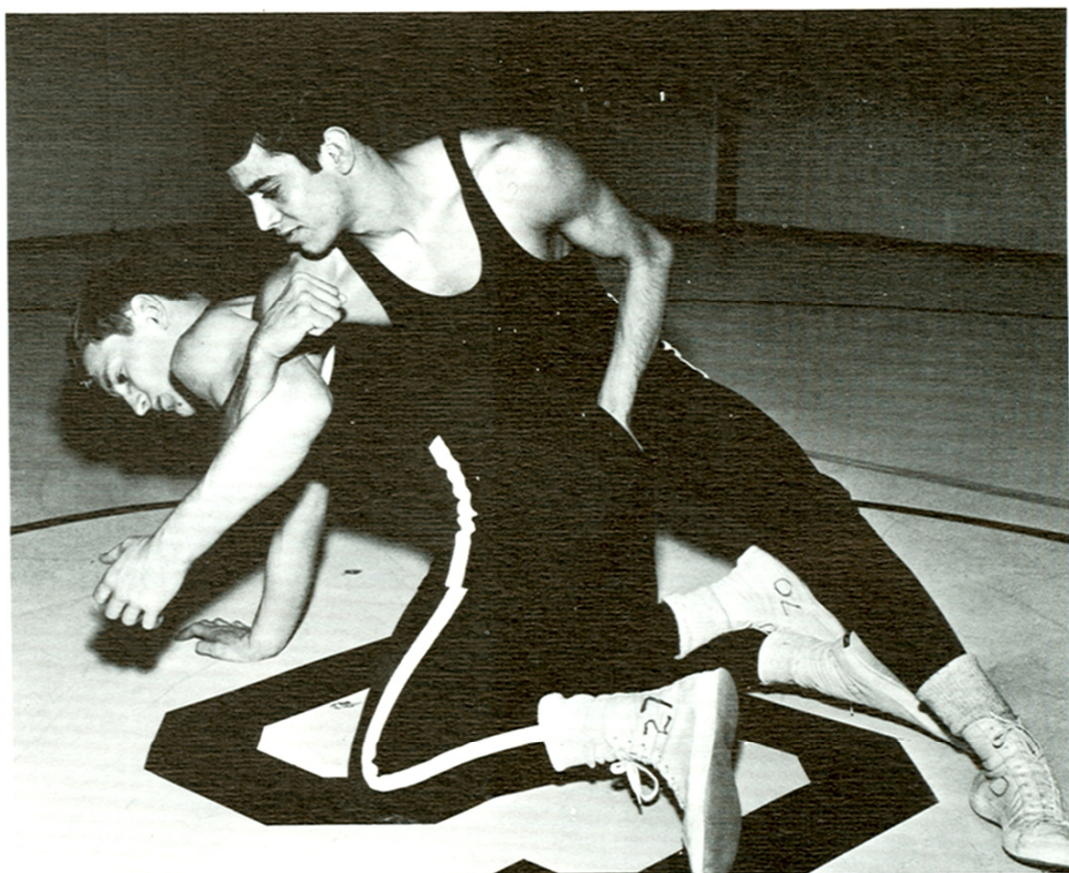

Mel Coleman, top rebounder for Stout, goes up for one more against Stevens Point.

Wrestlers placed third in conference meet.

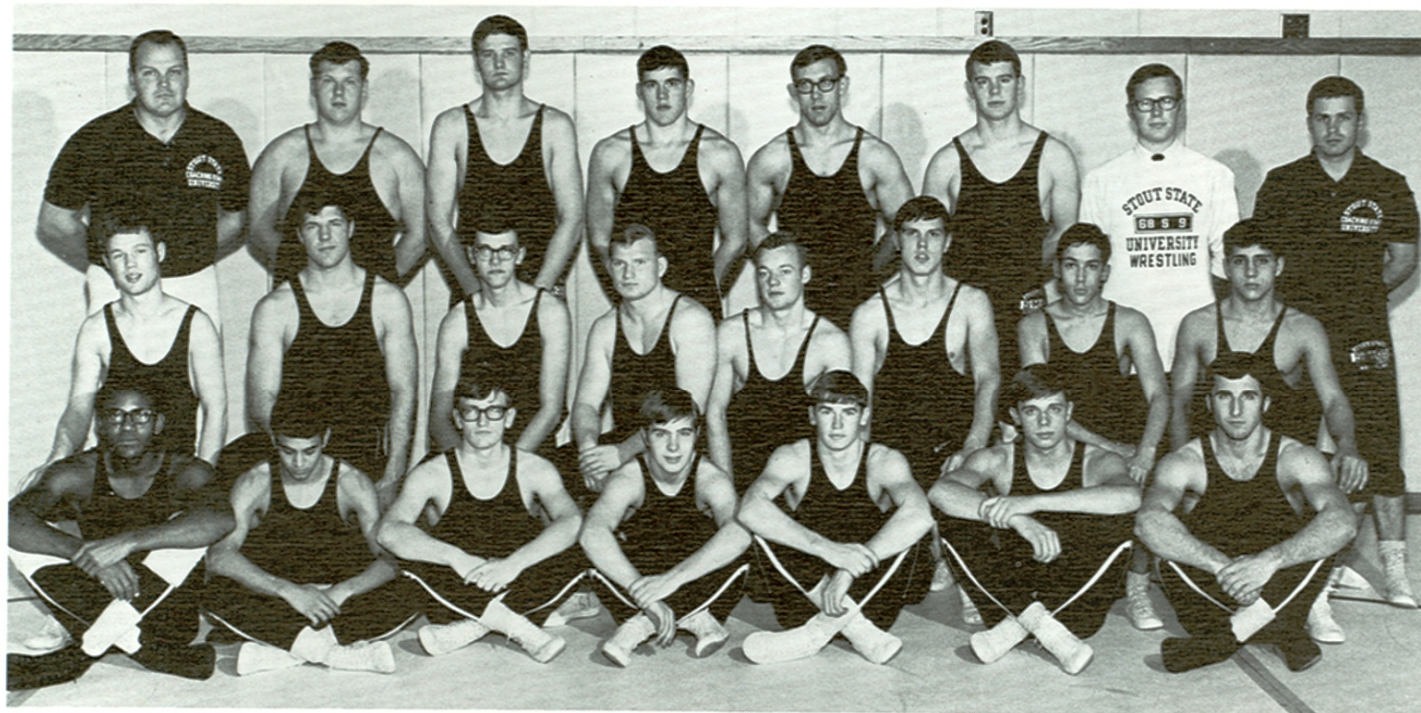

Strong opening matches prevented Coach Pierce's matmen from taking first place. Representing Stout at the National Championship in Omaha were Scott Mitchell carrying Stout's finest individual record along with John Peterson and Hector Cruz. Cruz placed sixth in the NAIA Tourney.

Floor pacing by Coach Pierce and cheering by other team members is par for a match between matmen.

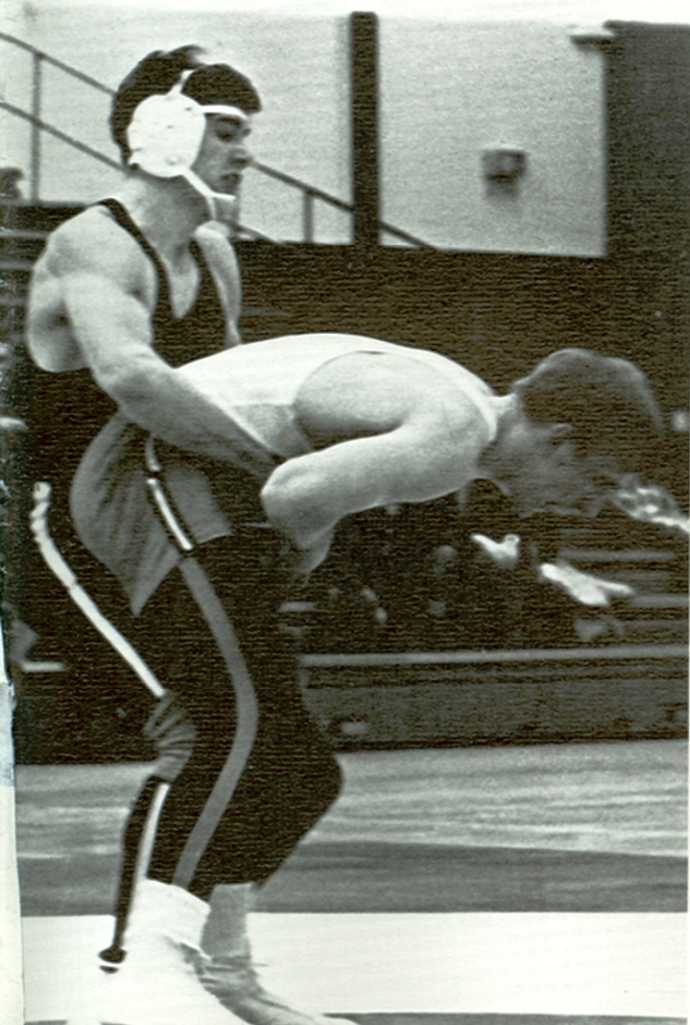

Freshman grappler Hector Cruz collects points as he goes on to finish the season 17-7 record placing sixth in the NAIA Tourney.

First baseman Jerry Herman executes a close pickoff play as a St. Cloud runner tries to steal second base.

With the umpire keeping his eye on the pitch, Vern Johnson fires a fast ball past a Northland batter.

The baseball season was marked with brilliant pitching

Thompson and Johnson and relief pitcher Reese.

Holmes and Lawrence performed well as hitters

Our defense was shaky.

After splitting the first double headers
we skidded into seven straight losses ending up with a 4-12 record.

With the "right breaks"
we could have won.

For this year's golfers the beginning was slow

although we did come on stronger later in the season.

The linksmen were paced by Olsen who placed sixth in the conference meet.

Rebne placed in the WSUC meet shooting a hole in one on the 138 yard par 3 fourth hole

It was Grady Steensrud's first hole as head mentor.

We finished seventh in the conference with ten points.

WSU at Oshkosh won with 19.

A short chip shot puts veteran linksmen Joe Urick on the green and into the putting position.

Senior golfer Mike Sheil critically eyes the green for his next drive on the Menomonie Golf Course.

Front Row: Bill Grey; Herman Oswald; Bob Cutler; Mike Sheil; Jon Kressin; Tom Rebne. Second Row: Steve Brown; Joe Urick; Ken

Olson; Bill Green; Tom Cornelius; Grady Steersrud.

Sheil assists a fellow linksman with the line-up as he sets to putt a ten footer towards the pin.

In the fall, archery tournaments were also included in the year's program of intramural sports.

Basketball—the male physical education department's version of Orchestis involves grace, coordination, and plenty of stretch.

The program of intramural sports

is maintained under the direction of the physical education department.

Swimming and tennis tourneys
were scheduled in the fall.

Second Milnes captured first in the flag football tournament.

Six leagues participated in basketball competition.

Mike Sheil served as student director for this year's intramural program.

One of Stout's more popular forms of relaxation—wrestling, a muscle-rending, teeth-gripping game, shows how to gain and how to lose friends.

With muscles taut and a keen sense of balance, Carol Govin performs a spread eagle in midair assisted by two other members of the gymnastics team.

As Seniors we began to question the future

Were we adequate to meet its demands?
Had we learned enough through four years
of classes and activities
to become teachers or to accept roles in fields of home economics, psychology, art, industrial technology, business?

As Juniors involvement became more inherent

We were involved in classes
more oriented towards our majors.

We were learning to prepare ourselves
for micro-teaching
student teaching at the high school
lab projects for abnormal psychology
advanced studios in ceramics,
sculpture and painting

We found a demand for production
that was uniquely our own—individualization . . .

Wires, circuits, and outlets present mass confusion to the observer, but Junior Tom Godfrey manipulates them well as he wires a flashing "Stout" billboard for the Homecoming dance.

Was specialization going to affect us, or would having
"just one more year to go"
leave us untouched
by the changes within our time?

We, as Sophomores were returning for a second year

Registration was less complicated,
We were already familiar with the faculty
dormitory life
regulations

Suddenly classes demanded more time
a five credit chemistry course textiles and nutrition economics—exams were "unbelievable."

Cement in a moving state will become a solid, reinforcing element forming the foundation of one of the many university complexes in construction throughout the year.

But probably more important,
We had to start thinking about student power;
about when to question,
and when to agree
about what direction we were taking here at this university.
The time was now.

We were a large class, about 1200 Freshmen

We were new,
We wanted to know
what was happening here;
We learned about instructors
registrations
the upperclassmen
ourselves
You might say "we grooved."

Some of us were undecided
about our majors
or how to study "correctly,"
about the building program,
the hours.

Mr. Olsen explains the functions of major systems while two "curious" freshmen dissect a member of the crustacean class in their general biology course.

As a class
we selected officers
participated in Homecoming
and elected "Gigi"
as Miss Freshman.

President William J. Micheels reviews blueprints at one of the many construction sites on campus this year.

President Micheels challenged the new year

At the all-university convocation held at the beginning of the year the president discussed problems facing today's campuses

"...the right to protest to oppose a law
or to engage in controversy."

Open discussions were held throughout the year with students and faculty.

"No one will be happier than I to see our students as well as our faculty get directly and deeply involved in taking a careful look at this and in trying to make suggestions and come up with ideas where this can be made stonger or where we can possibly try for some changes in direction as may be desirable . . ."

Of major concern was the Mission Statement.

The President and Mrs. Micheels accompany Dr. Huston Smith, guest speaker during Homecoming, to the anniversary banquet.

Confronting students with the challenge of "existentialism," President Micheels addresses the university at a convocation held during the first semester.

A Greek barbeque was held in Wakanda park during Greek Week.

Interest in Greek Life was stimulated by various events throughout the year, one being a panhellenic popcorn party sponsored in the fall.

At Round Robin, Cheri Hoyer gives a run-through of the year's activities to rushees using the sorority scrapbook.

Greeks

We're part of the system

We've been debated
degraded,
pro'd and con'd
tossed around
like so many proverbial apples in a bag.
Greeks don't need defending.
We'll exist today

tomorrow
Sometimes
barely so
other times
a jubilant, breathing Life Force
because we are a part of that Life Force.

We have been
and always will be integrated with human development.
Surely we have our failings.
We are Thing oriented—overly concerned about the Insignificant,
forgetting goals.
Some are letter jacket wearers.
Some find satisfaction through social life.
BUT—

Some become involved in the school's vascular system
in their own development.

They
in a good, selfish sort of way
pick the choicest parts of the Greek system
for their development
into people
adequate for the day in which they are living.

This year
many heads were beaten against many walls because of
"tradition" bindings
inefficient communication
"I really don't give a damn" attitudes.

Assemblyman Alvin O'Konski addresses students as part of the speaker-performance series sponsored by Greeks.

But

Realization

that the world has changed
and is changing

will be our Savior.

We've stood still far too long.

There's the charge that Greeks have outlived their usefulness.

But to whom are they obligated to be useful?

to individual members?

to the campus?

to anyone?

Some say residence halls are taking over.

Greeks argue

brotherhood

tighter organization

smaller "closer knit" groups.

If you are satisfied getting these Things
in a residence hall
then

Don't Go Greek.

No one has to.

The Greeks invited Truax and Company to The Pawn for an evening of folk entertainment.

In Retrospect . . .

A changing society's impact on our university

A Sign of the Times

This year

student unrest

a protest demonstration

bomb scares

voiding of SSA elections.

We felt the impact

Robert Kennedy's death

Czech revolt

Chicago convention scenes

Apollo VIII

Release of the Pueblo crew

Nixon administration.

As a result we experience

changes in course emphasis

new courses in current problems

open discussions

an underground newspaper.

Coordinating campus activities

and world events

into a record of this year

was our challenge.

We believe our efforts,

this book—The 1969 TOWER,

Reflect

the Signs of the Times.
